Report to the line manager of

TIMOTHY ROBINSON, 12/08/1976:

EIN: 611691734

OUC: NPG683

Introduction

Thank you for referring Mr Robinson to Health Management for advice regarding recurrent short spell of absence. I conducted a telephone assessment on 8 June 2023. Verbal consent has been obtained for the provision of this report and discuss the consultation and report with BT OHS Core as necessary. He has had sight of this report prior to his employer. This report is given for advisory purposes only and is not legally binding on any party.

I would recommend that this report is read in conjunction with our previous report to you for background information.

Current Position

I understand that Mr Robinson is employed as a SME Customer Service Advisor on a full time basis. His role is primarily desk based and he is on hybrid working. I note he has been off work since April 2023.

I have reviewed the referral letter and the notes from meeting regarding APR comments. I understand that the management are concerned about his psychologically wellbeing and the referral states:

Tim believes BT security has been following him, at one time he feared for his life and also believes BT Have contacted his sister and step father to discuss his case (unconfirmed). Tim believes that the home office/MI6 and Boris Johnson are involved in his case. Tim believes the BT strikes are also involved in his case and some senior managers have lost their roles because of his case. Tim has made reference to his mother's death being BT's fault. Tim believes there is corruption between the union and BT.

I explored the issues stated in the referral. Unfortunately, Mr Robinson was reluctant to discuss those issues with me. He explains that he did say something that he should not have been said in the meeting. He explains that he was "100% sure about what he has said". He indicates that he made some comments in the meeting and these were relevant to the discussion but he felt that the management has paraphrased his comments and misrepresented the facts. He believes certain agencies have been involved in the case but he would not want to discuss with me further.

Mr Robinson states that his work issues started around 2-3 years ago and he raised a grievance, which the management is aware. He was working with the union but he felt that he was “exploited” by the union and this was the root cause of the problems. He indicated that he was threatened by the Union to withdraw his grievance case which gives very grounds to suspect that the individuals within the Union and BT were not acting in good faith. Mr Robinson also indicates that on his previous absence he was being asked to return to work without being referred to occupational health for advice and support.

Mr Robinson states that he discussed some work issues with his GP and I understand that his GP has not offered him any treatment. Mr Robinson states that his GP was of the opinion that it was unacceptable for BT to tell him to let go of the past and offer counselling services.

Mr Robinson does not believe he would need any medication for his mental health. He feels that his stress levels have improved since taking some time off work. I understand that BT has offered him some counselling, which he declined.

Mr Robinson reassured me that he is not going to harm himself or anyone. He has some support from his family. He indicates that his sleep can be erratic at times but in general he has been able to sleep well. He reports no issues with his concentration and he has been able to function on a day to day basis.

Mr Robinson states that his mental health is fine.

Opinion

This is a complex case. At present, given the limited information, I have not been able to provide comments on his fitness for work.

It does appear that Mr Robinson has been experiencing symptoms of stress due to work related issues. I understand from him that his work related issues have not been fully resolved. It would appear that his perceptions are deeply entrenched, especially his views about the organisation and his union.

I can see that the management are worried about his mental health and the comments that he made in the meeting in April 2023. Those comments would make one wonder whether he was able to tell what is real from what is imagined. I do feel that he has some degree of reduced insight on his mental health and this may well be compounded by his on-going perceptions on the work related issues. Evidently I am not in a position to comment on the veracity of the account provided by Mr Robinson of his employment circumstances within the organisation but I reflect it to you, as provided to me.

Given that Mr Robinson’s GP is aware of some of health issues, I think it would be helpful to get a medical report from his GP. They may be able to clarify his mental health issues.
